

A couple hundred feet
From the corner of the street
Lies the coin of the realm
You so avidly seek.

It's attached to a record, broken and brittle,
But look to the left of the footpath a little.
Lovingly placed under snow so snug,
It must be a place where nobody's dug.

Probably a rake would be your best tool,
But don't harm a thing in this nice park Newell.
Your clue writer's nerves are ready to fold,
So please bring it in from the snow and the cold.

Medallion still on loose

The St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch and the Winter Carnival Association, sponsors of the King Boreas Treasure Hunt, have agreed to extend the hunt if the medallion is not found by midnight Saturday.

The new deadline would be 6 p.m. Sunday.

As stated in the rules, if the medallion is not found by midnight Saturday, the newspapers reserve the right to end the hunt and turn the initial $1,000 prize over to charity.

Officials of the St. Paul Winter Carnival said the regular rules for prize payment will apply if the hunt is extended, however.
